

REFERENCES

- Boustany, Andre M., et al. "Expanded niche for white sharks." Nature 415.6867 (2002): 35-36.
- Hammerschlag, Neil, Austin J. Gallagher, and D. M. Lazarre. "A review of shark satellite tagging studies." Journal of Experimental Marine Biology and Ecology 398.1-2 (2011): 1-8.
- Jewell, Oliver JD, et al. "Effects of smart position only (SPOT) tag deployment on white sharks Carcharodon carcharias in South Africa." PLoS One 6.11 (2011): e27242.
- Jorgensen, Salvador J., et al. "Eating or meeting? Cluster analysis reveals intricacies of white shark (Carcharodon carcharias) migration and offshore behavior." PloS one 7.10 (2012): e47819.
- Jorgensen, Salvador J., et al. "Philopatry and migration of Pacific white sharks." Proceedings of the Royal Society B: Biological Sciences 277.1682 (2010): 679-688.
- Julia Schnetzer. "Oceani" (2022): 101-120.
- Nasby-Lucas, Nicole, et al. "White shark offshore habitat: a behavioral and environmental characterization of the eastern Pacific shared offshore foraging area." PloS one 4.12 (2009): e8163.
- Shiffman, David S., et al. "Inaccurate and biased global media coverage underlies public misunderstanding of shark conservation threats and solutions." Iscience 23.6 (2020).
- Vannuccini, Stefania. Shark utilization, marketing and trade. Vol. 389. Food & Agriculture Org., 1999.
- https://youtu.be/C_HsAZrjDpg live from the white shark café- sharing expedition results.

